Truths

- Ever since I was a Teenager, I have always had my heart on my sleeve. I have trusted people too much and that has left me in disaster. From a best friend who played a prank on me to a boy who liked to lie straight to my face. Ever since it has been hard to forge friendships, but I believe I am finally meeting people who will care for my heart, and I know I will care for theirs.

Goals

- The goals I would like to accomplish in the future is to become a very well known illustrator/mangaka and to discover how to live. This is very important to me. I feel as if I weren't to complete it, I would wither away and become a disappointment. It gnaws at me, everytime I have freetime and might just be relaxing, the thought pokes me and says, "If you were working on your artwork you would have been famous by now." It motivates me, but yet haunts me. This goal that I have in my life is not only my dream, but it is a MUST. I can't fail, I don't see that as part of my goal.

Daydreams

- Daydreams are the starting point for my escape. They are what fuel my Imagination and my motivation for the future. Everytime I daydream, it is like stepping into a whole new world without any worries from the real one. Even though It has helped fuel my future job as an illustrator, it has some repercussions. I spend so much time in my daydreams that it makes me homesick for a place I have physically never been to. Sometimes it's hard to come back to the real world. I don't see anyone in this world with me. Sometimes I just sit and stare at the sky, and sometimes some of my own characters are there with me.
 - Escape: The world around me just feels like a constant war that I need to shield myself from.
 - Whole New World: This world is purple, soft, and calming.
 - Characters: I feel like the only people who have the opportunity to live in this world with me are my characters that I make up for my stories.

- I think I would like to incorporate more of my daydreams into my artwork. I have always been shy of expressing my true goofy, daydreaming side; but, maybe, just maybe, those people that I share these daydreams with won't feel so alone and say, "hey, I know how she feels."
